KINDNESS /'kain(d)nes/ noun

1. Loaning someone your strength instead of reminding them of their weakness.

~ TheMindsJournal

Happy Mother's Day to all of the ladies! You all deserve a wonderful day, regardless of the number of children you have had. Women everywhere teach, love, guide, and help as part of who they are. Thank you for that. Your loving example has made a difference. This poem says it all:

"If I Knew As a Child"

If I knew as a child what I know now, Mom, I probably wouldn't have made things so hard for you.

I would have understood that you were looking out for my best interest, even though it may not have seemed so at the time.

I would have known how difficult it is to let go, to stand back and let someone you love learn from their mistakes.

I would have realized how fortunate I was to have a mother who was always there for me.

And even though
I was not good at showing it,
I remain forever grateful.

— Renee Duvall (adapted)

"ASK THE PHARMACIST" —

with Jennifer Sell, RPh, Director of Pharmacy Services ProMedica Monroe Regional Hospital

The Highs and Lows of Statin Therapy

I receive lots of questions about statin therapy in my practice, which is not a surprise given that this class of drugs has been among the most highly prescribed in the last decade. Statin drugs are very effective at lowering total cholesterol and have proven their effectiveness in reducing the occurrence of heart attacks and stroke. These benefits do not come without some risk of side effects though, which can make many patients wonder if a statin is right for them and what the long-term risks of taking these meds are.

The most common side effects cause by statins are muscle pain, digestive problems and mental fuzziness. These meds rarely cause liver damage, but the FDA has issued warnings that they can cause an increase in blood sugar or development of Type 2 diabetes for some patients.

If you are on a statin and experiencing side effects, it is important to let your doctor know right away. Do not stop taking the statin without talking with your doctor or pharmacist first. There are options like switching to a different statin, lowering the dose or adding Coenzyme Q-10 to help minimize side effects.

There has also been a lot discussion that these meds cause memory loss and confusion when taken on a long-term basis. There have been a number of studies that have reviewed this and so far, there is limited evidence to prove a cause-effect relationship. On the flip side, there has also been some evidence that these drugs may help with brain function in patients with dementia. Again, more research is needed to prove this.

So, is a statin right for you? If you have risks of heart attack or stroke or have already suffered one, the answer is yes. The key is to find the right statin at the right dose so you can receive the positive cardiac benefits while minimizing the risk of the side effects. A conversation with your doctor and your pharmacist can help to answer your questions about statin therapy and finding the right one for you.

Take care and stay healthy!

WORDS MATTER

WHAT DO YOU SAY WHEN YOU TALK ABOUT MENTAL HEALTH?

hen it comes to mental health and mental ill health, the words we use matter more than we think. The way we talk about mental health and people experiencing mental distress can reinforce negative stereotypes and be stigmatising, without us even realising it.

Language is a powerful tool for creating awareness and fighting stigma, so here are a few tips on how to be mindful of the words we use and how to avoid causing offence when we don't mean to. We have tried to pick terms that are non-stigmatising, but we understand that each person is unique, and some people may not identify with the language chosen here.

BE CAREFUL WITH LABELS: DO NOT REFER TO PEOPLE AS THEIR CONDITIONS

A person living with a mental health problem is much more than their experience or diagnosis. You could not describe yourself with a single word, could you? Avoid the use of diagnostic language when referring to people: A diagnosis does not represent a person's whole identity!

- II A person with a mental health problem II
- 44 A person living with mental ill health 99
- II Mental health service users II
- ⁶⁶ Person with lived experience ⁹⁹
- "Expert by experience"

- II A psycho II
- "He/she is a schizophrenic "/ " A depressive "
- "The mentally ill/sick "
- 44 People with mental disorders **
- "The mentally diseased/disordered"

SPEAK ABOUT THE EXPERIENCE, NOT THE SYMPTOMS

e all have mental health, and we may all experience psychological distress at some point because of specific events or circumstances happening in our lives. Experiences of mental distress can vary greatly from individual to individual. When we need to bring up someone's mental ill health, it is better to speak about what they are experiencing, rather than using psychiatric terms. Terms such as 'illnesses' or 'diseases' can be helpful for some people as they may help them seek help and support, but they can also hinder our understanding of mental distress as a wide spectrum of experiences and feelings.

- II A person experiencing mood swings II
- ⁴⁶ She/he is hearing voices or has unusual beliefs⁹⁹
- II He/she has been given a diagnosis of II
- 46 Someone who is currently experiencing"
- ⁴⁴ A person receiving support for ⁹⁹

- ⁶⁶ Encountering/experiencing emotional or psychological difficulties⁹⁹

The Monroe County Building Healthy Communities Coalition is a collaborative workgroup with representatives from health and human services agencies across the county focused on improving the health and wellbeing of residents. Each month, as part of the Community Health Improvement Plan the group selects a focus area. Mental Health Awareness Month was chosen for the Month of May.

EWG'S DIRTY DOZEN GUIDE TO FOOD CHEMICALS: THE TOP 12 TO AVOID

The Environmental Working Group is a community 30 million strong, working to protect our environmental health by changing industry standards.

Our food should be nourishing and safe to eat. But more than 10,000 chemicals are allowed in food sold in the U.S. Almost 99 percent of food chemicals introduced since 2000 were greenlighted for use by food and chemical companies, rather than properly reviewed by the Food and Drug Administration. Many of these widely used chemicals are associated with major health harms, including increased risk of cancer, developmental harm, and hormone disruption.

These substances end up in what we eat, thanks to a legal loophole that allows foods to be classified as "generally recognized as safe." It's a loophole food and chemical companies have exploited for decades – it means that instead of the FDA determining which food chemicals are safe to consume, the manufacturers of those substances decide.

EWG's Dirty Dozen Guide to Food Chemicals shows which chemicals to avoid in food by highlighting some of the worst offenders on the market.

Nitrates and Nitrites

Nitrates and nitrites are preservatives used in cured meats. Nitrites can form from nitrates and have been linked to stomach cancer, esophageal cancer, and possibly brain and thyroid cancers.

Potassium Bromate

Potassium bromate is a possible human carcinogen added to flour used in packaged baked goods.

Propyl Paraben

Propyl paraben is a preservative used in pastries and some tortillas. It causes developmental and reproductive harm.

BHA

Butylated hydroxyanisole, better known as BHA, is a preservative used in cured meats and other foods. Multiple sources have identified it as a possible human carcinogen.

BHT

Butylated hydroxytoluene, also called BHT, is a preservative found in cereals and other foods. It's a chemical cousin of BHA and is a possible human carcinogen.

TBHQ

Tert-butylhydroquinone, or TBHQ, is a preservative used in Pop-Tarts and other processed foods. It may harm the immune system and weaken the effectiveness of vaccines.

Titanium Dioxide

Titanium dioxide is a color additive used mostly in candy. It may damage DNA.

BVO

Brominated vegetable oil, or BVO, is used to stabilize citrus flavors in sodas and fruity drinks. It can cause neurological harm.

PFAS

The toxic per- and polyfluoroalkyl "forever chemicals" known as PFAS are used in food packaging and are known to leach into the food itself. They increase the risk of cancer and damage the immune and reproductive systems, among many other health harms.

Artificial Colors

Synthetic food dye can be found in many types of food and beverages. They can affect development and cause behavioral difficulties in children. There are seven we're especially concerned about: Red 3, Red 40, Yellow 5, Yellow 6, Blue 1, Blue 2 and Green 3.

Artificial Sweeteners

Artificial sweeteners can affect the hormones that regulate metabolism and have a negative effect on weight control.

Heavy Metals

Many baby foods contain dangerous levels of heavy metals, including mercury, lead, cadmium and arsenic. Exposure can slow growth and development, increase cancer risk and lead to behavioral and learning difficulties. Most metals get into food through water and soil pollution.
